This is not just a reason for pride, it is also a confirmation of the right path of the company.

When choosing grapes for Grand Admiral still wines, we strictly control the whole process of grape growth and ripening: we leave 1.6 to 3 kg of berries on the vine, which allows us to achieve the maximum balance of bouquet and taste in our wines. For 24 months of aging still wines, we use oak barrels of the famous French brand Seguin Moreau. After aging in oak barrels, our winemakers create an author's blend and pour wine into bottles for further aging, and only after that the wines are offered for sale to discerning buyers and collectors. Wines are available in bottles of 375 ml, 750 ml and 1500 ml.
